

FaithDiscussions.org is an educational website we've setup to encourage reflections, discussion, dialog, and resource sharing around our course this term, "Love is an Orientation." Here are some things you need to know.

READING POSTS

You don't need a password to read posts. Just type FaithDiscussions.org into your web browser on a computer or smartphone. You might "bookmark" or "favorite" (save) the web link so you can refer to it often during the semester.

GUIDELINES

Please read the "Welcome to the Class," "Group Guidelines," and "Some Definitions" posts that Curt has already shared. Anyone is free to comment on any of the posts on our site, but all comments are moderated.

VIDEOS

We will be sharing the videos we watch during this course online, but you'll need to use a password to access them because of copyright. The password is _____. Click VIDEOS at the top of our site to view them as we share them. We hope this will help, especially if you have to miss a class!

REFLECTIONS

We want you to engage in discussions not only IN class when we meet in person, but also online. Please consider writing AT LEAST ONE reflection during our class that you POST using the same password we're using for video access.

All posts and comments on FaithDiscussions.org are moderated: Contributions must be approved, so they will not show up immediately for others to view.

This website is maintained by members of FPC Edmond, but is not an "official church website" managed by church staff. This is NOT an official website of Andrew Marin or the Marin Foundation.
